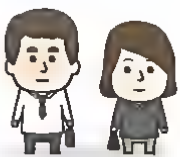
Household Chores: Part 1

Household chores=
Mom & wife's job

Outside work=
Dad & husband's job

This formula worked for our parent's generation.



But it doesn't seem to be fair for a young couple like us nowadays.

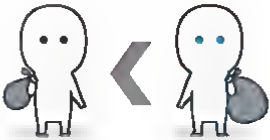
I think our generation is standing an a kind of transition period.

[Only 20% of two-earner couples share household...]

It looks like there are still many mountains to climb.

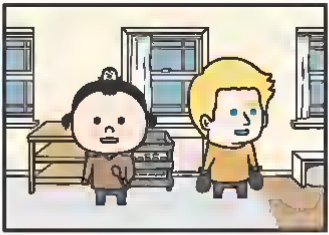
But I'm sure we're pointing ourselves in the right direction.

Then, how about
Penguin and Mev....?



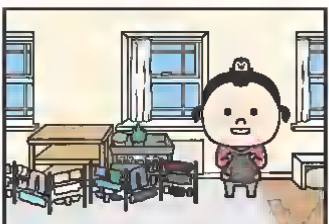
Compared to Korea, people in England
seem to share these jobs a bit better

When I see
my family and friends around me,
they share work more naturally.



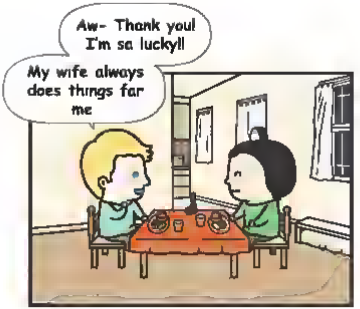
So Mev and I also share house chores pretty well.

But in the end, I do a little more house work than Mev does.



I think it's becouse I work from home
so I have more time to monage house work

And it's totally fine



Because I can feel that Mev is really appreciative about it.

In my opinion,
I think wives are like this.

It doesn't matter if our husbands do exactly the some amount of house work.

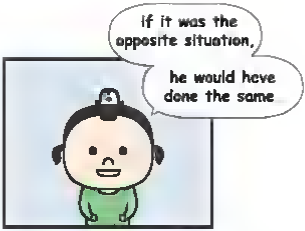
What really matters is that they have this feeling in their minds

I don't feel it's unfair. Because...



This mind. A relationship that can make me have this feeling is the most important thing.

To be continued...